Says Planters Should Stop Big Water Waste

That the Sugar Planters' Association should appropriate $10,000 or $15,000 for water research work in these islands and should give this sum to supplement the government funds is the opinion of W. F. Martin, head of the water research branch of the United States Geological Survey in these islands. Thousands of dollars are going to waste every year, he states, owing to the lack of knowledge existing as to the water supply, the leakage in the ditches and the amount necessary for growing cane. With the additional funds to work with the department could save this for the plantations. "From the department already we have sufficient to indicate beyond the shadow of a doubt that there should be some deduction of sugar brought right up to general systematizing of the water line with the latest inventions," he told.

A few days before Daisy Spencer. It was only a few days before Toogood was murdered by her husband, drunk and depraved, murdered band, Albert Toogood, a brutal and his wife that she had written this letter, horrible crime that will long remain in the memory of the people. "My Dear Chris: In writing you she wrote to her former husband, Chris these few lines, I hope they will find Wagner, in far-off Ballingen, Germany, you? We are all well and we all send her $100 as a birthday gift. The letter has been sent back to me. Don't you know August first I Honolulu, and in sending it back Wagner will be 25 years. You say you've got her says that the Toogood woman had lots of money. I will write again to intend returning to him in Germany, you sure. I am about the same. Whether she deceived him in order to get more money, or whether she was got me on my birthday. I want to really repenting of her many misdeeds have a luncheon before I come to Germany, and determined to quit Honolulu and good luck to you. Lots of love and know. Wagner and Daisy Spencer, his wife, lived happily in Honolulu together, until Toogood came upon the scene. Wagner declares that Toogood broke up his home. At any rate, Toogood's relations with Mrs. Wagner became so notorious that Wagner quit his position with the wireless company here and went, broken-hearted, back to Germany, to his mother and sister.

From eleven members, meeting anywhere they could get in—and only at irregular intervals—to seven hundred members, among whom are many of the heads of the business community, and a building that has not its equal in any town of the size throughout America, is the history of the Young Men's Christian Association in Honolulu.

The original movement for a Y. M. C. A. organization was started on April 30, 1869; the old building was put up, and then came the movement for the present one, into which the members go tomorrow afternoon—the "quarter-million character factory." During this week there has been a flurry of excitement passing through the halls of the old building, and now most of the furnishings have been carted across to the new home, still glistening in its last coat of paint. Tomorrow will see the old door locked for the last time and the flag of progress raised on the new place. Quietly and unobtrusively, throughout all the great movement, General Secretary Paul Super has worked harder than he has asked any of his men to, and when he raises the standard of the association to the top of the flagpole tomorrow and hears the

Stirred By Danger Spots

Stirred by the revelations of the "Seeing Honolulu" tour yesterday afternoon for members of the Merchants' Association, President E. O. White of the association has named a special committee of three on sanitation, to which is given the mission of taking steps for work at once to rid the city of some of its pest-holes. The committee consists of O. C. Swain, G. G. Gold and A. J. Gignoux, and President White has requested it to cooperate with the health committee of the Chamber of Commerce. The object of Mr. White's action is to start immediately toward cleaning up some of the insanitary places to which the attention of the Board of Health members and Senator A. F. Judd, who acted as their escort. The Board of Health, without funds to effect the needed work, has faced a wait of two years until the next legislature meets. If the ideas of the members of the Merchants' Association who saw conditions yesterday are carried out, there will be something done at once. No delay will be necessary. "I've lived in this town all my life, but I must say that some of the things

CHANCE BID IS BARGAIN WINNER

A. J. Spitzer was the successful bidder today in a real estate auction deal that involves one of the most emphatic bargains picked up in a long while. He secured the leasehold on the Collins building between Fort and Bethel streets on King, for $6,000, estimated by real estate men as hardly half its real value. Incidentally, the story of how Mr. Spitzer won it is a good one. He had just finished his lunch and was strolling down Fort street when his attention was attracted by a little crowd at the Trent Trust company's office. He came in late and was just in time to see the auctioneer about to let the property go. Mr. Spitzer says he saw it was a good chance, so he threw in a bid of $6,000 and was successful. The leasehold on the building will not expire until 1931. With a ground rent of $300 a year the building is good for $200 rentals annually, part of it now renting at $150 a month.

PATTERSON GETS OUT FOR $4,500

WABUKE, Oct. 6.—It is announced today that W. R. Patterson has sold both his road and bridge contracts to the firm of A. A. Wilson for $4,500. Mr. Wilson is to assume all obligations. Scarcity of citizen labor is said to be the main cause which induced Contractor Patterson to sell out his contracts, coupled with the fact that he could not obtain Engineer Hugh Howells' services at any figure. Mr. Patterson has already imported from the coast materials, implements, animals and rolling stock necessary for the stupendous contract he had successfully bid and was awarded the contracts, but for the consideration aforesaid and for other considerations known to the parties interested Patterson has almost given away his contracts for a song. It is claimed. The U. S. A. T. Sheridan, which will sail from this port at 9 o'clock this evening, will carry mail to the coast.
